About the 16th Georg RAJKA International Symposium on Atopic Dermatitis, ISAD Beijing 2026

This conference brings together renowned international experts and researchers in the field of atopic dermatitis, focusing on advancing research, improving clinical care, and fostering international exchange and cooperation. Its objectives are to promote academic exchange (spanning both basic and clinical research) and technological innovation in the field; to facilitate sharing and collaboration between China and the global community regarding cutting-edge research and clinical practice; to create a platform for extensive, in-depth interaction among young researchers; to enhance China's international standing in the clinical treatment of and research into atopic dermatitis; and, ultimately, to benefit a greater number of patients and the general public.
